

AS a probationer in the Children's hospital, London, princess Mary, the only daughter of king George and queen Mary of England, is learning to become a nurse. Princess Mary is related to the royal family of Rumania, and princess Elizabeth of Rumania, like her, has won the admiration of her people by her efforts to help the sufferers from the war.

PEARL WHITE, most famous of all serial stars of the screen, has returned from her vacation and this week began work on her new Pathé serial, "The Lightning Raider." The new thriller will be in 15 parts and Pearl has a brand new role quite unlike any other she has assumed.

She lives in New York in modest style, in an apartment house just off Fifth avenue. She has a summer home on Long Island, where this year she has been spending her vacations to recuperate for only three weeks.

In the past six months more than 700 photographs of Pearl White, which she has autographed, have been sold at the rate of $100 a dozen, but for the good of the cause.

Miss White is now engaged in writing her autobiography. At the age of 25, she has written a book of 100,000 words, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" troupe playing in the mountains of the southern states; at 12 she was a trapeze performer in a small circus; in 1914 she was the first woman in dramatic stock company.

SUNDAY, JULY 21, 1918.
THIS is a doubtful day, according to astrology, for the stars contend for good and evil domination. While Jupiter, Uranus and Venus are in benefic aspect, part of the time, the planets change to malefic aspects. During this configuration it is well to be cautious about thoughts as well as actions.

Women are supposed to be exceedingly unassertive and capricious under the stars. The stars indicate that the law of extremes will affect them as it affects all things else, and that while many will rise to supreme heights of heroism, others will be extraordinarily selfish and mercenary.

This is not a favorable day for lovers, who may be easily provoked with each other. There is also a way that is encouraging to domesticity. It is encouraging to be constant in associating with relatives or friends during this planetary direction, as the stars may encourage discussions and disagreements.

One of the strange results of the war is the fact that the women are supposed to produce war, in the falling away of friends, mistresses dating and the like. The war will change radically each year, this prophesy.

There is a place making for unusual interest in dress, and again there is a proposition that a national dress be made for women for standardized attire for women may take place before autumn.

There is a feeling that the times seem to emphasize the wisdom of small value, because these will become precious, since their manufacture will not be changed after the war.

Persons whose birthdate is 1901 are in luck and are called upon to reside. They have the onen of domestic anxiety. They should be careful of their affairs.

Children born on this day may be inclined to be careless and untidy. They are not to be taken too seriously to be unsettled in nature and fond of the things of the world.

Copyright 1914 by the Motion Picture News Syndicate, Inc.

MONDAY, JULY 22, 1918.

SINISTER conditions are read for this day, according to astrology. Stars are strongly adverse, while Uranus and Mercury are in evil place. There is a sign indicating serious losses of iron and steel. This may be due to some temporary military reverse.

This is not an auspicious day for army affairs. During this war obstacles may be encountered and disappointments sustained, but they will not be of extreme importance.

There is a place encouraging the machinations of enemies. The

He seems to point persistently to secret foes in governmental positions. This is not a lucky day for reaching agreements or signing contracts or treaties.

Cranus gives warning of duplicity and treachery that may reflect on important men of higher up.

Non-complacency, diplomacy are preached by the stars and oriental nations will be much to be considered.

Congressmen and others who solicit the fair may be subject to some such criticism and judgment, owing to the malignant influence of the planets.

This is a most unfortunate day for men of managers, especially persons not opposite. (Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper-Syndicate.)

OPHELIA

Copyright © 1992 by William Andrews, Editor

It's Wrong to Pursue Him Boldly; but a Little Innocent Coquetry to Show Your Preference for Him Is Permissible.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am a working woman in the early 30s. I have traveled considerably and have had my full share of experiences and have gained a pretty good knowledge of the world. During the past half dozen years I have become interested in an exceedingly attractive young man, who is now nearly 25.

My feeling for him could easily become a devoted love if I were given the opportunity to know him better. I am usually cold hearted young person, but I am sure that I can give him a good time, and I am sure will never marry any one unless the woman does.

It is useless for you to say that his is a very good idea. I am sure that because my observation of young men shows that they are generally too arrogant to be able to make a good selection myself to make all the advances so that I can be sure that I am getting within me as to whether I should marry or not.

Of a home.

There would appear to be two questions. First, would a woman prefer to choose the man she wants for her husband, or would she prefer to let him choose the right, is it fair for her to choose a man as much younger than she?

Traditionally, the man has always been the one to choose the woman. But is this really the best way? According to some of the clearest of modern thinkers, the answer is no. If we follow the line of thought of the modern thinkers, it would seem that he has no right to choose the woman for himself.

He has invariably been selected

During the occasion opportunities I have been afforded to discuss my companionship altogether and forever, thus gradually vanishing the old-fashioned prejudices and go in for the new. I am sure that my companionship will be held enough to its advantage.

I am not now interested in any woman, and I am sure if he were fond of me we should be able to get a divorce. I am sure that it is hard for me to give him up, but a little there is to give up, for I have half measures, and I am sure that I should not try to make any more of them. I am sure that I am a man who is more anxious for to realize this is a problem which all the philosophers of the ages have not solved, and it is a subject worthy of the attention of Plato, Aristotle and another opinion than one's own is always interesting, so I should appreciate any views given in the columns of The Herald.

J. J. T.

My correspondent has written me an interesting letter, dealing with an entirely modern situation. I am sure that the experience of her case is one that she is facing in so honestly and squarely.

And through the situation is typical of the modern business world and the relationship of older women to younger men, the clear thinking she

Without loss of dignity or self-respect, a woman may show her preference for the man of her choice in doses of little or no consequence.

In fact, she has been doing this for countless ages, though there has always been a stigma attached to the policy on the part of the powers that be to make the man believe he is being deceived.

At the present time we are franker than we were in those early Victorian days, but the stigma is still there. There may be fewer "downcast eyes," but there are also a corresponding number of furtive, truthful ones.

It is a sad thing to see a young man, in regard to our second consideration, is a woman justified in choosing

[illegible]

Gou Tellegen Is New Play; Playwright Sayre Wins Copyright Suit.

NEW YORK, July 26.—General director Cleofonte Campanini has announced the engagement of the Italian lyric-dramatic tenor, Alessandro Dolci, for the coming season of the Chicago opera. Dolci, who has been singing in grand opera for more than four years, is reputed the Punch and Judy "water company," the same being chiefly Charles Ingram—because of alleged infringement on Sayre's "Treasure Island." Dolci's version of "Treasure Island."

Sayre's version had its initial hearing at the Hoffman trial on the Bronx on December 23, 1916. Another version, by Jules Steiner, was heard at the same trial, as was the French and Judy theater.

Hoffman's alleged infringement, although Sayre carefully pointed out to him that he was not to do so, was not corrected in America. Nevertheless the French and Judy company ten, respectively, known in vanderhille as the Alien sisters.

The wedding ceremony was made possible by the decree of divorce recently separating Ferry from his wife, Mrs. Mary Ferry.

Mary previously was divorced from Florence Moore, now the brightest Italian soprano in the Metropolitan Opera.

Mrs. Florence Moore may be identified still further as the widow of the late John H. Williams, a trio of press agents.

Montgomery has been reported as having been married to the stage since he and Florence Moore parted.

the most tenor now in Italy, although he is but 25 years old.

In announcing this important engagement Mr. Mampanini said: "I am proud to have secured mainly from so beautiful a vocal instrument, but one of the most versatile singing actors in the world, Doted, a young artist, is of the type more familiar in the old school in which a tenor was required to sing a wide range of parts, instead of confining his work to either lyric or dramatic roles. He has won the approval of the Italian press and public."

Manager on Skyscraper.

Being especially lofty in her ideas of art—and if you don't believe it, ask the manager of the Metropolitan Opera House—Mrs. George H. Meyer, wife of the president of the Metropolitan Opera House, has been told that she must not be too high in her estimate of her husband's performance. Perhaps the reason is that she is a hyponotist, but nevertheless it is worth while calling attention to the fact that last week Pauline Schett returned to the Metropolitan Opera House in high dudgeon about a year ago because of some trivial item in the billings. She was so angry that she threatened to leave the company and her high act simultaneously.

At the time of her outburst, shortly before the opening maine performance of the new season, Mrs. Meyer Schett would again ease her way into the favor of the Keith interests. However, Mrs. Meyer Schett, in declining the fine, generous thing, as they usually do, and are giving the volatile prima donna another chance.

practically the entire Italian repertoire from Hadames in "Aida" to Edgardo in "Lucia." His voice is most appropriately matched in his role of the knight in English media by "Sweet."

Leon Tellegen's New Play.

When Leon Tellegen makes his bow as the new artistic director, it will be in a play entitled "The Blue Devil," and written by Frederic and Fannie Hill. The play will be produced early in the fall by Mr. Tellegen himself in conjunction with Charles Fox, who is producing the new production operates under the name of the Low Television company, Inc. "The Blue Devil" as the actors have been promised.

At Jackson, who recently ended the long run of "Sinbad" at the Winter Garden, is to be replaced by "The Californians." He has had various invitations from military camps along the way to give entertainments for the troops. It is to be expected that his literary is order to meet these various requests. Mr. Jackson's home is in Oakland, Cal. where he has a large vineyard. He is expected to return to appear in "Sinbad" at the Forty fourth Street theatre.

English Girl Here.

Violet Hensfield, long connected with the Winter Garden and who has made a number of appearances in the theatre in London, has been engaged for an important role in the Winter Garden production of "The Californians."

Fortunately, it is a comedy, and its leading roles are said to fit Mr. Telleran, who is a Frenchman, and Miss Lorraine, who is the beautiful girl, the angel of Robert Hilliard's coat.

It was inevitable that the picture should have been made on a grand stage during these war times. In fact, William Lorraine has beaten Mr. Telleran to it, because she is appearing in "The Girl in the Red Velvet Coat," a picture which has the same title written by Irving Berlin.

Mr. Telleran has recently returned from a tour of the long coast of the "Blind Youth," which was from coast to coast during a tour of 28 weeks.

Playright Says Is Victor.

Theodore Durr Sayre, playwright, has gained a complete victory in the litigation waged against him by the theatricals of the Gaiety, has already been made a member of the board and now a lieutenant in the aviation corps, where he chose it for the site of a home. Located at the corner of 10th and 11th streets, the house being built himself, he is becoming the support of the immense water tanks at the basin of the estuary.

But wait till you see Miss Davis's serial domicile. She says it will be a Palm Beach transported to New York.

Vaudeville Amalgamations.

A few days ago, amalgamations of vaudeville performers will interest every player in the varieties; first took place at Springfield, 1, 2 and 3, and nothing but a double wedding of Billy Mumfory and George Perry, his professional partner, to Minnie and "dime" Al-

Show of 1914," will follow the run of Al Jolson in "Sinbad." Miss England's gradual successes were made in the "Blind Youth" in the summer which was modeled after the Winter Garden's "Passing Show." She was seen in New York with Clifford Crawford in "The Girl in the Red Velvet Coat."

Spanish Girl Kept.

Nina Vautier, the original Spanish beauty, who has been transferred to the east of the "Maytime" company, now appearing at the Broadhurst theater, with John Charles Thomas, and Lynn Thomson and John T. Murray.

Adolph Klauer has secured the maternal rights in "Hawthorne's" "The Great Gatsby," which is a play, which appeared recently in McClure's magazine.

REUSE OF DATA

MASS cracked ruins covered with heavy moss and bathed in cold waters of a beautiful bay are all that remains of Baiae, Italy.

Beneath the waters of the bay lie the mosaics and marbles of former splendor, for Baiae was once the Newport of the Roman empire.

The historic ruins include the temple of Apollo, Julius Caesar's Olympic Bay residence, where that hold-harder agent was able to relax after his adventures in the restful world. Pompey, Caligula and Nero also had their summer cottages at Baiae, and the famous "Golden Shore" where the rabble followed.

The recent beach of Baiae on glittered with chariots and garbed Romans in white tunics and togas. It was proclaimed by the press of Caesarea "The Golden Shore." The marble palaces and luxurious gardens were built about the sea, and the emperor's eight vaulted banquet halls and lounging rubbed shoulders, and luxuriated in the warm sun.

Even the inhabitants of Mount Olympus seem to have favored Baiae. It is said that Hercules drove his chariot there, and that he made the entrance to Hades via Lake Avernus is said to be located here. This was the place where the Greek gods met seawork which Anax and the Sybil came to take. Moreover, it is at Baiae that royal and ranting Lucius, the Emperor Nero, was killed by a mob of slaves and is said to have spent the next few days following the disturbing occupation of crossing back and forth on the bridge as fast as horses could carry him.

can be much younger than herself" we can only consider the question of physical attractiveness in historical context. The marriages of this type were generally base wife's only to two. But in the case of the well known historical cases of Diarrad and his wife, George Washington and his wife, and the bishop Plunkett of Maryland, base wife is said to have embroiled the husband in a scandal.

The reason for the success of such marriages seems to be that they bind the husband to the wife by a bond of protective quality of the material interest.

It is almost case my correspondent would not be taking the fortunate young man away from society, since they are both bread earners working shoulder to shoulder.

I think if she decides to "overcome" old fashioned prejudices," there is no reason why a young man, a woman so honest and intelligent could not fail to make a good wife.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE BLACK CAT.
By ROBERT B. GARDNER.

"Oh dear! Oh dear!" screamed Nurse Jane Fussy Worry, the muskrat lady housekeeper, from the kitchen at the hollow stump humpage, where she was making a cherry pie, for Uncle Wiggly's laquers, the bunny rabbit gentleman, Oh, dear, dear!"

"What is the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggly, dropping his glasses and looking at the merry-go-round lady elegantly with the double jointed tail after you?"

"No, it is a black cat," answered Nurse Jane.

"Did he bite you?" asked the bunny rabbit gentleman, waving his paw.

"Though you are a vet lady, I thought you were not afraid of cats, Nurse Jane, as you are so large."

"I'm not afraid of being bitten by them," spoke Miss Fussy Worry. "But a black cat is a sign of bad luck, and I don't want any to happen to you or me."

So much noise. Are you ready to go home, Uncle Wiggly?"

"Why, yes, I am."

"Why?" asked the bunny, suspicious like and diffident.

"Because," said the cat in a whisper, "the bad fox is hiding outside, waiting to grab at me if I should go near him hide. But, if you walk behind me I will fluff up my tail like a bologna sausage and I will do what I need to do. Then the fox won't get you."

"Will you scare him, too?" asked Grandfather.

"No, but you see I am as black as a night," said the cat. The fox will be afraid of my claws or my long moving along, and if Uncle Wiggly keeps behind me, and my tail, the fox will not see him."

"Fine and dandy!" said the bunny so he walked home behind the black cat.

SCHOOL DAYS

Gosh, what a funny to
I know ~~you~~ never seen place before but it just as familiar!
Seems like I'd play
these rocks lots o'
Ever feel that u a place?

"Thank you for those kind words," said a voice out in the yard from the kitchen window, and, looking inside, Uncle Wiggily saw a black cat sitting there. "Oh, you are very welcome. I'm sure," said Uncle Wiggily, "I only want to do what is right. You didn't bring Nurse Jane any bad luck; did you?"
 "No, indeed. I just saw a big bird flying down and going to take some of the cherries Miss Fussy Wiggily was going to put in her pie, and I made my tail big and round, like the big-

"There you are! See the black cat gave you good luck, Janie!" said Uncle Wiggily, with a laugh.

"Well, I'm glad it did, and I'm sorry I made such a fuss," spoke the muskety lady. "Now, run out of my kitchen, Wiggily, and I'll finish making this cherry pie."

"You were very kind to me, taking me apart that easy," said the black cat to Uncle Wiggily. "If ever I can do you a favor I will."

"Why do not mention it?" spoke the henry, with a twinkle of his tail, silk, black hat—oh, excuse me! I mean his shiny nose!

That evening Uncle Wiggily went over to call on Grandfather Goosey the moving picture, and then the bunny stopped in Grandpa Goosey's new house for a little chat. When it came time for Uncle Wiggly to go home, Grandpa Goosey opened his front door, and then, all at once a voice cried:

"Mewow!"

"That was my new, most, fitterler," chuckled Grandpa Goosey. "There is a black cat here, Uncle Wiggly."

"Right," exclaimed the black cat, putting its paw over its lips. "Don't make was black, just like the night, the fox never saw it nor the bunny, either. It was enroute again," said the fox when morning came, and the bunny was safe in his bungalow. "Fooled again!" And if the trolley car doesn't run off the tracks and get stranded in the forest, he'll be in the park, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly and the white rabbit. Copyright 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Britain Has Six Remarkable Escapes from Death in War

London, Eng., July 26.—Private N. Day, of Shillington, has six remarkable escapes from death on the western front. They are:

Shell burst on his gun, killing five comrades; six horses of which he was line!

with the British mariner of Pecos-sonia fame who founded Virginia, is commemorated in the new Washburn

Over the spacious old fashioned fireplace is his motto: "We are born not for ourselves but to help others and to imitate the virtues of our predecessors by worthily being their successors."

A sketch of a landscape. In the foreground, there is a body of water with some small, dark shapes that could be rocks or small boats. In the background, there are trees and a small boat on the water. The sketch is done in a simple, expressive style with dark lines on a light background.

The rememberer

1. Chlorophyll a (Chl a)

Copyright, 1943 by Bill Mauldin. All Rights Reserved.